The venue is a pavilion in a public gardens inside a park on a hill/small mountain overlooking Barcelona. The views are stunning, but your taxi driver might be a bit challenged to drop you off at the right place. The venue is a round pavilion just inside the gateway to the Jardins de Joan Brossa (jardins means public gardens). The main road this is off is Avinguda Miramar. You can't see the venue from the roadside.

There are a few landmarks that can be used:

- There is a half-round turnoff area, with a large statue, at the Plaça de Dante. There is even a taxi stand sign there.

- The drop-off half-circle is across the street from 1992 Olympics diving venue, which is now a municipal pool - the Piscina Municipal de Montjuïc.

- Also across the street and down just a little bit by the traffic light and crosswalk is the Salts Terrassa Bar Montjuic. It is a bar that overlooks the pool and city, and might be a nice spot to "pre-game" before the mixer!

- Also across, and just up the road a little bit is El Xalet de Montjuïc, a restaurant.

- And finally, perhaps 75 meters further up the winding hill road is a building used as a cable car stop - that says Telefèric de Montjuïc. If you get out there, just walk down the hill for a minute and you should be at the Placa de Dante half-circle.

If your driver still gets turned around, and you get dropped off higher up the mountain park, just walk in to the Jardins de Joan Brossa a bit, as the distinct circular pavilion is just down the hill.

For the drop-off, these are the steps you go up ... it is a short walk from there, through the public gardens, to the pavilion.
